ANOTHER CHAPTER IN SCHOOL BOOK ROW

Oklahoma City, June 17—Textbook company which secured a portion of the purported five-year adoption made by a majority of the State Board of Education last July, at the time Gov. Cruce made his order removing four of the board members from office, today filed injunctive proceedings in the Oklahoma County District Court to prevent the new board from making another adoption, the date for which is fixed for July 15. The plaintiffs are W. H. Wheeler & Co., who secured readers for the first five grades; Scott, Foresman & Co., who were awarded high school books and readers for the sixth, seventh and eighth grades; Atkinson C. Mentzer, drawing and geometry; Silver, Burdett & Co., arithmetics, and Scribner & Sons, histories and high school books.

The suits are based upon an advertisement of the board that it will receive propositions for another five-year adoption of books, claiming that in the purported adoption of July, 1912, the plaintiffs secured a property right measured by the profits that would flow by reason of the awards. It was also urged that the aid board was a defacto organization from the date of its appointment until its members failed of confirmation before the State Senate last December; that as a legally constituted organization it had power to sit as a State Textbook Commission, to adopt textbooks periodically and in the adoption of last July, which was for a full set of books for a five-year period, its power in that respect was then exhausted. The question of the Governor's authority to remove members of the board without proceedings in court is not presented; however, the complainants are relying upon the position taken by the old board members in that controversy.

Messrs. Ledbetter, Stuart, and Bell and Asp, Snyder Owen and Lybrand filing the suits, assert their clients are protesting under guarantees of both the State and Federal Constitutions and will have the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. Hearing on the temporary application was set for June 18.

Trust Sued for Contempt

Birmingham, Ala., June 16—The criminal contempt proceedings that were brought by the Government against the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association and fifty-nine individuals for alleged violation of the anti-trust decree against the "Grocers' Trust" came up for hearing in the Federal court here today. The Government charges that the defendant's employed threats and persuasion to prevent manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers from reducing prices. It is also charged that the have sought to coerce manufacturer and producer to market through the wholesaler, and have conspired to prevent transactions from producer to retailer to consumer. Peculiar interest attaches to the contempt proceedings, as the action may be a forerunner of prosecutions of other trusts including Tobacco and the Standard Oil.

West Virginia to Jubilate

Wheeling, W. Va., June 16—At daybreak this morning, amid the reverberating boom of cannon, the shrieks of steam whistles and the clanging of bells, the semicentennial celebration of West Virginia's statehood was ushered in. The early arriving visitors found the city aglow with color. Some idea of the extent and lavishness of the decorations may be gained from the fact that since the work of adorning the city began during the latter days of last week ten car loads of flags and bunting have been sold by the merchants. The principal event of the program today was the opening of an elaborate exhibition of the manufactured and other products of the state.

NEGROES CARVE EACH OTHER

HENRY GALBERT AND CLARENCE
EVANS IN MIX-UP—GALBERT IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

A cutting scrape took place in the negro section of the city early Sunday night in which Clarence Evans and Henry Galbert, both negroes were slashed to some extent, Galbert seriously. Evans was cut on the right hand and slightly wounded just below the chest. Galbert was stabbed in the right side of his chest, and slashed on the head and left jaw. The fight took place in front of Cul Hodge's place.

As yet no complaint has been issued against Galbert. At the preliminary hearing of Evans this afternoon his bond was fixed at $750.

According to the testimony introduced Galbert came up to Hodge's place and asked if his wife had been seen there. Hodge said she had just started towards the school house. Galbert declared it would not be good for her when he found her. Evans then spoke up and said he was not going to beat up any woman around there. Galbert wanted to know what he had to do with it and one word bringing on another the fight started.

University Over 300 Years Old

Buenos Ayres, June 16—The celebration of the tri-centennial of the University of Cordoba, the oldest in the western hemisphere, began at Cordoba today with a great gathering of delegates from famous institutions of learning throughout the world. Founded by Fray Tejo de Sanabria in 1613, the University of Cordoba is twenty-three years older than Harvard, the oldest university in North America. Many of Argentina's most distinguished men have been graduates from Cordoba, including President Avellaneda.

WARM DRY WEATHER FOR THIS WEEK

Washington, June 15.—Warm weather with clear skies over the greater part of the country is predicted for the coming week by the weather bureau.

"There will be scattered thunder showers the first part of the week along the northern border," the weekly bulletin says, "and by the middle of the week showers will set in along the East Gulf and South Atlantic Coasts."

"No important storm is charted to cross the country during the ensuing week, although a disturbance of minor intensity will form Tuesday or Wednesday over the western plateau region and advance thence in a northeasterly direction, attended by local thunder showers, and reach the region of the Great Lakes Thursday or Friday."

To Decide Fate of Sulzer Measure

Albany, N. Y., Jun 16—Called together by Governor Sulzer to take action on a Detroit Nomination bill, the members of the New York Legislature assembled in extraordinary session today. Since he issued the call for the session five weeks ago Governor Sulzer has stumped the entire State in behalf of the measure which he tried unsuccessfully to get through at the regular session. He now professes to feel certain of victory at the extra session. This optimism, however, is not shared by some of the Governor's friends. In order to get his bill through the Governor must convert eighteen senators and twenty-eight assemblymen, who are already on record as against his plan.

NEGRO FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

FRIGHTENS SEVERAL LADIES
EAST OF CONWAY—ARRESTED IN ADA.

Saturday a negro by the name of Nelson Wade caused considerable excitement in the community east of Conway by insults offered white ladies at three different places. On being notified of the facts Deputy Sheriff Duncan and County Attorney Roland left for the scene of the trouble and assisted by Lee Reynolds and Mr. Moss, two farmers in that section, spent the night hunting the negro. Sunday morning he was tracked to Ada and the officers named above and Sheriff Mitchell picked him up and put him in jail.

It is said that the negro first appeared at the home of Mrs. Can-well, drew a gun on her and demanded that she supply him with more cartridges. She went into the house ostensibly to secure them but instead slipped out the back way and escaped. He next appeared at the Moss home where Mrs. Moss and another lady were. By this time he had done something with his gun and after he had chased the ladies out of the house one of them grabbed an axe and ran him off. His next stop was Lee Reynolds' place. Mr. Reynolds was at home and appeared on the scene while the negro was asking his wife of his whereabouts. When he appeared the intruder fled.

The officers finally tracked him to Ada and soon had him located. His arrest followed as a matter of course.

WORSE THAN HYENA OR VULTURE

Oklahoma City, June 17—A hyena who had spent the hours of the night reveling among the graves of the dead and whose jaws are dripping with the putrid gore of carcasses, the vulture who feeds alone upon filth and carrions, are each and both angels of righteousness compared to a man who enriches himself at the expense of female virtue. Hyenas and vultures do not feed on their own kind. The fact that the county attorney referred to the defendant and his companions as hyenas and vultures is a compliment to him and an insult to hyenas and vultures.

Judge Furman of the criminal court of appeals used the above language in referring to W. R. Emons, convicted under the white slave law in the district court of Pottawatomie county and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and a fine of $500. The judgment of the trial court is affirmed and the only fault the court finds with the verdict is that the jury did not see fit to give the defendant the maximum term of twenty years in the penitentiary.

MASONS WILL OBSERVE ST. JOHN'S DAY SUNDAY

The Masons of Ada will observe St. John's Day with appropriate services at the First Methodist church Sunday. Rev. C. L. Brooks will preach the sermon for the occasion. The Masons will meet at the lodge room at 10:00 a. m. and the services open at 11. This service will be open to the general public.

Any erroneous reflection on the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of The News will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

Obituaries and Resolutions of Respect of less than 100 words will be published free. For all matter in excess of 100 words a charge of one cent per word will be made. Count your words and remit with manuscript.

Some of the late decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court have hit a number of the little tyrants on the lower benches pretty hard. They served their masters well but they have been severely rebuked by the higher tribunal. Perhaps there will not be so many injunction suits against states hereafter.

NOT GUILTY.

A Batchelor school teacher, 46 years old wants to meet some old maid teacher not under 30 years old.—Want Ad. in Ada News.

Wonder if that isn't Byron Norrell? It would be just like him to disguise his "wants" like that. But who ever heard of an old maid being over 30?—Stratford Tribune.

Not guilty, Bro. Rushton. Knowing how an effort of that kind would inevitably result in failure, it would weaken the confidence of our advertisers in our pretty word pictures about how ads in the News bring results when they saw how little good we got out of an ad of this kind. However, the gentleman inserting the above want ad being a handsomer man, we think he will get full value for the money expended.

CHEER UP

The corporation commission itself now admits that Art. 9, Sec 9, of the constitution failed to accomplish the end for which it was intended and only serves to retard railroad building in Oklahoma. The commission favors its repeal and in this they will be joined with a majority of the thinking men of the state. We need more roads and are not going to get this barrier is removed.

A LIVING DEMON

The belief in demons and spirits, once universal, has given way before the advance knowledge, but there is one demon of destruction that science can never destroy, because its existence is beyond all power of science to drive from the earth. It will always be a constant, though unwelcome companion of man, ever wrecking suffering and destruction on him. The name of this spirit of woe is Suspicion, and there is no place so secure that he cannot enter. He points his fiery finger at the innocent heart and it withers away. He loosens the tongues that should be silent. He spreads his bat-wings over a happy home, confidence takes flight and anguish reigns henceforth. He whispers evil tales in a community and straightway the best of friends become enemies, strife springs up with the suddenness of toadstools, and antagonism rends apart men who should live as brothers. He blows his poisonous breath into the councils of men in whose hands rests the destiny of a promising city, and instead of becoming a city it is left a village where bats inhabit the dwellings that once resounded with joy and laughter. He arouses class against class and blood flows where harmony lately reigned supreme. At his touch nations fly at each other's throats and fertile fields become deserts. He sweeps over the face of the earth like a fierce tornado and everything falls before his might force. Suspicion is but a shadow in form but in power he is the right hand-ker for the prince of evil and into execution most of the the father of lies.

HENSHAW FAVORS AMENDMENT

FAVORS PROPOSAL TO AMEND SEC. 9, ART. 9, RELATING TO RAILROADS

Members of the Corporation Commission will not oppose adoption of the amendment to Sec. 9, Art. 9, of the constitution being submitted at the August election by the legislature. This was announced by George Henshaw, member of the commission in an address before the state press association at Bartlesville. Jack Love, chairman of the commission, will lend no aid in adoption of the amendment neither will he oppose. No other commissioners are for the amendment.

The State Press Association also unanimously adopted resolutions favoring the repeal of the section.

In brief the proposed amendment permits the consolidation or purchase of domestic railroads by companies having foreign charters, under authority given by the corporation commission. Commissioner Henshaw, giving the commission's position spoke in part as follows:

"To fully understand the effect of the amendment it should be understood that we have in Oklahoma now six systems, viz., the Rock Island, Frisco, Santa Fe, Katy, Iron Mountain, Kansas City Southern and in the near future we believe the Orient will be considered a system road. All of the system roads are foreign corporations and parallel each other, and therefore can not consolidate and are not affected by the amendment to be voted on August 5. In fact they are prevented from consolidation by the federal anti-trust act. Hence we may dismiss any consideration of these roads from the discussion. Then the roads that are directly affected by this amendment are the small roads in Oklahoma not exceeding 175 miles in length.

"It is true most of these roads are now making operating expenses and interest on the investment, yet they haven't sufficient business that would warrant the installing of first class equipment and the frequent operation of trains that is a great convenience to the citizens living along the line as compared with a road that operates from three to four passenger trains each way daily and a sufficient number of freight trains. It is very evident under existing conditions that none of these small roads will develop into a large system.

"One important thing that should be considered with reference to the shippers that live along the lines of the smaller roads is that they are unable to buy all the commodities they use along the line of this road and their shipments must necessarily originate on the line of one of the larger systems. The transferring of this shipment to the smaller road makes a two-line haul and usually carries an arbitrary charge from $6 to $12 a car additional limitations and restrictions item to be taken into consideration when a year's business is considered. In fact, it amounts to more to small shippers along the small lines than their entire state and county tax. If the amendment is adopted, no transfers can be made without the consent of the corporation commission until the meeting of the next legislature at which time the legislature may impose additional limitations and restrictions but can never authorize the consolidation on less favorable conditions to carriers without obtaining the consent of the commission. That must be the event, yet other restrictions used in addition to of the commission.

to the system that does not penetrate the section of country through which the road runs. I may illustrate this by using the Oklahoma Central from Chickasha to Lehigh. We would approve a sale of this road to the Santa Fe because it puts the Santa Fe in the Rock Island, Frisco and Katy territory. The Santa Fe does not now reach Chickasha, neither does it reach Ada or Lehigh, and if this amendment is adopted and the Santa Fe should buy the Oklahoma Central and extend this line on down to Shreveport and ultimately to New Orleans and then connect its northern branch at Tulsa to this system, the benefit to the State of Oklahoma which would result from such an outlet can hardly be estimated.

"I have serious doubts that the commission would approve the sale of any road except to connect two parts of the same system, thereby shortening the distance to any road that owns the other roads in that locality. If the Ft. Smith and Western should desire to sell to one of the systems we would much prefer the Kansas City Southern to buy this road or the Iron Mountain, so as to put these systems in parts of Oklahoma where they do not now operate.

"I am using this to illustrate that inasmuch as we only have six or seven systems in Oklahoma it is to the interest of the public that these systems should be extended to all parts of the state as near as may be and thereby come in competition with each other. In this connection I desire to say that the original idea of preventing the consolidation of railroads was for the purpose to create competition. This theory has largely passed away with the regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the various state commissions until the only competition we have now is service and prompt and proper service means a great convenience to the public and in many instances saves them money. I remember last year some of the roads were short of equipment and grain dealers lost from 2c to 4c a bushel on their grain. Prompt service in these instances meant almost as much as the freight rate.

"No member of the commission has heretofore opposed an amendment of this kind. While Chairman Love is apprehensive that if this amendment should be adopted the people may grow careless and adopt some other amendment similar to the one first submitted, yet he agrees with me that this amendment within itself can do no harm and may result in much good. He will do nothing to secure its adoption, neither will he take any active interest in preventing its adoption. This amendment was proposed by the people of this state primarily and not by the railroads would write if the same were left to their direction, notwithstanding the smaller roads are doubtless supporting the same, hoping to secure such benefit therefrom as may be possible.

Unable to See Harm.

"I have studied this question in all of its phases. I am unable to see the least harm that can flow from its adoption. I can see much benefit to many localities in this state. I am not one who believes it will put a railroad in every town. There is not sufficient business and territory to put in a new railroad in all parts of the state. Yet I do believe that some of the smaller roads can at least make operating arrangements or lease or sell to some of the larger systems and benefit the people materially along those lines and that many branch roads will be built such as from Ardmore to Waurika, Ardmore to Lawton, from Alva west through the Panhandle counties and possibly east through the north tier of counties to Joplin, Mo., and a possible connection made from the Henryetta coal fields direct to Oklahoma City, reducing the coal rate to Oklahoma City and Western Oklahoma; the extension of the Oklahoma Central through the western counties of the state and the extension of the Oklahoma Central down through Choctaw County and into the connecting of the Santa Fe from Tulsa to Ripley.

"The amendment is adopted that 75 per cent of the suggested extensions will be built unless it should be a from Oklahoma City up Kingfisher County to Woodward and on to the Northwest. With these considerations I am willing and or fall by my judgment and am ready to say to the people of this state that it is to the best interests of this state to adopt the proposed amendment."

ADA ELKS LODGE OBSERVES FLAG DAY

The Ada Elks observed Flag day Sunday afternoon with an appropriate program to which a number of friends was invited to witness.

The Elks organization is strictly an American institution, and patriotism and loyalty to the flag are two of the cardinal principles taught. Annually the order observes the anniversary of the birth of the American flag with impressive ceremonies that further inculcate the lessons of patriotism and love of the stars and stripes.

Besides the regular work of the lodge, a part of which was the reading of the history of the flag by B. M. Bobbitt, Judge Tom D. McKeown read the poem describing Gen. Joe Wheeler at Santiago, and which is reproduced in another column. Several splendid vocal numbers were given by a sextette composed of some of the best singers of Ada, and the program closed with the singing of "America" by the entire audience.

The lodge room was profusely decorated with flags and every one present wore a small flag on the lapel of their coat.

After the conclusion of the exercises the visitors were shown through the elegant quarters of the lodge and made to feel themselves at home.

Attention R. A. M.

There will be a special convocation of Ada Chapter No. 26, R. A. M. Tuesday, 17th inst., at 7 p. m. for work in the Most Excellent and Royal Arch degrees. All visiting companions cordially invited.—Remember the hour, 7 p. m. sharp. F. C. SIMS, H. P. 2td

Montreal, June 16—Delegates from all the important shoe manufacturing centers of Canada and the United States are attending the biennial convention of the Boot and Shoe Worker's International Union, which convened in this city today for a session that is expected to last a week or ten days. In addition to the routine business of the union the convention will devote much time to the discussion of workmen's compensation and wages.

Grandma Talks About Babies

Has a large Circle of Listeners Who Profit by Her Wisdom and Experience.

In almost any settled community there's a grandma who knows Mother's Friend. Not only is she reminiscent of her own experience, but it was through her recommendation that so many young, expectant mothers derived the comfort and blessing of this famous remedy.

Mother's Friend is applied externally to the abdomen, stomach and breasts, allays all pain, avoids all nausea, and prevents caking of the breasts.

It is quickly and wonderfully penetrating, permits the muscles to expand without the strain on the ligaments, and prepares the system so thoroughly that the crisis is passed almost without the slightest distress. Thus there need be no such thing as dread or fear. No better nor more cheering advice can be given the expectant mother than to suggest the use of Mother's Friend. She will take courage from the beginning. The days will be cheerful, the nights restful. Thus the health is preserved, the mind is in repose and the period is an unending one of quiet, joyful anticipation.

You can obtain Mother's Friend of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle. Do not forget nor neglect to be supplied with this greatest remedy ever devised for motherhood. It is unfailing. Write at once to Bradfield Regulator Co., 133 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their very interesting and instructive book of advice for expectant mothers.

Get 100 Cents Value for Every Dollar You Spend

A dollar is worth 100 cents value in everything you buy, but do you always get "value received"?

You can give or take from the value of dollar by the way in which you spend it. Your pleasures in life, your standing and influence in the community depend largely upon the value you place on every dollar you own and the value you get on every dollar you spend.

Dollars, spent unwisely lose their full purchasing power and value to you; careful spending and systematic saving will enable you to secure "value received" and future independence.

You will secure full value on every dollar you spend by reading the advertisements in the NEWS closely and constantly every day. THE NEWS' advertisements will tell you the best purchasing opportunities and direct you to the most reliable stores in Ada.

NORMAL ENROLLMENT

TOTALS 612—DETAILED REPORT
BY COUNTIES AND STATES.

The enrollment at the East Central State Normal for the summer session now under full sway, far surpasses that of any previous year. President Briles has made no effort to secure students from outside the territory assigned this institution by the state board of education and those that are enrolled from outside have been attracted here by the excellent record made by the school in the past. There are 371 pupils doing credit work who are seeking better professional paper and 241 who are merely taking the review subjects in preparation for the examinations for teachers certificates. Quite a number of students will continue their studies towards the schools diploma, and the senior class of next year has been increased fully ten through those who have been attracted here through the summer work. The following is the enrollment by counties: Pontotoc 195, Hughes 92, Johnson 65, Murray 55, Coal 48, Seminole 40, Garvin 27, Pottawatomie 24, McClain 14, Okfuskee 3, Pittsburg 3, Oklahoma 3, Jefferson 2, Rogers 2, Atoka 2, Washington 2, Grady, Okmulgee, Muskogee, Wagoner, Osage, Kay, LeFlore, Lincoln and Comanche each one. The following states have: Texas 12, Missouri 5, Arkansas 4, Tennessee 2 and Louisiana 2. Total enrollment 612.

The facilities of the institution has been taxed to its full capacity to supply the needs of the students enrolled.

DRUMMOND HEADS DRY- FARMING CONGRESS BOARD.

Tulsa, Okla., June 16.—(Special)—W. I. Drummond of Enid, one of the well known newspaper men of Oklahoma, has been elected chairman of the board of governors of the International Dry-Farming Congress. He succeeds O. A. Brewer of Helena, whose resignation was recently asked for by the board. Mr. Drummond founded the Enid Daily Eagle twelve years ago and is still a part owner in that paper. He is also editor of the Interstate Farmer, one of the strong agricultural papers of the southwest.

"I have taken up the work of the Dry-Farming Congress because I believe it to be of vital importance to the people of Oklahoma," says Mr. Drummond. "Under our irregular rainfall the principles of dry-farming are definite crop insurance against drouth. The exposition to be held at Tulsa will not only be interstate, but international in character. It will be the most comprehensive show of crop products which the southwest has ever seen and will give Oklahoma people the best chance they have ever had to compare their crops with those from other states and nations and to profit by the comparison. I shall urge every Oklahoma farmer that I can reach this summer to go to Tulsa in October."

The investigation of lobbying now going on in the U. S. senate, which was the outgrowth of the charges made by President Wilson that certain special interests were using improper methods in thwarting the will of the people, is a move that proves the president is able to cope with the willets of the political crowd. It has served to put the senators who were inclined to kick out of the traces in a very bad light, for in the face of the exposures being made few will dare to betray the trust of their constituents. It would be hard to convince the people that they were not improperly influenced.

The Daughter of David Kerr

By Harry King Tootle
Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright, 1913, by A. G. McCharg & Co.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl who has spent most of her life at school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II—Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper.

CHAPTER III—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER IV—Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe.

CHAPTER V—Gloria twists Wright on his failure to keep an engagement to meet her in Paris. He explains that the death of his mother prevented his going to Paris.

CHAPTER VI—The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the rehashing of the Kerr home.

CHAPTER VII—One society bud who refused to meet Gloria is forced to do so when her father is made to feel Kerr's power.

CHAPTER VIII—Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News.

"To the end of the world," she whispered as his arms were folded about her.

And as their lips met in their first kiss, Wright saw in her eyes the light that never yet has shone on land or sea.

CHAPTER XIV.

Even as Wright held Gloria in his arms there came back to him her words:

"Yes, I believe in you—as I believe in my father."

They were like lead about his heart, and cautioned him that he must get her away from Belmont as quickly as possible. Words of love must be postponed, new-found bliss be treated as commonplace, until he had finished his hard task of persuading her to go away.

"You've made me supremely happy, Gloria. I want you to believe in me and trust me—always."

She smiled up at him her love and confidence as she answered, "I do, I do."

"I want you to be happy, and I know you're not happy in Belmont. You must go away at once. I'll follow you."

"But why?" she questioned. The smile was still there, but surprise peeped forth from her eyes. "I'm happy now."

Wright laughed at her with that delightfully patronizing air of possession that lovers assume, caught her in his arms once more and kissed her.

"I know, dear, but you'll be happier. I can't explain. You wouldn't understand. Can't you trust me?"

"Ye-es, but father would—"

"He won't oppose your going, I know he won't." At thought of David Kerr and the fierce fight they were waging Wright became insistent. "Do this for me, Gloria. You can get a late train for St. Louis tonight. I'll have Mrs. Gilbert go with you. Next week I'll join you, and we'll make plans for the wedding."

"But, Joe, that's so foolish," she complained. "I like Belmont immensely now." Then she struck a more serious note. "Besides, I wouldn't be fair to father. He's put me through, and I'm not going to disappoint him. To go away—well, I feel it would be disloyal."

"You can write him we're engaged," he pleaded. "Then I'll go to see him."

Gloria could not altogether understand his insistence. Then, too, to send her away just after they had found each other was something she could not explain to her father.

Further discussion was put out of the question by the appearance of Judge Gilbert.

"Would you object to waiting for Mrs. Hayes in this office?" he asked, pointing to the room next to that in which the men had been conferring. He smiled as he added, "Mr. Wright came on business, you know."

"I think he transacted it with me, Judge Gilbert," she could not help replying. Then she asked Wright with a smile, "You won't be long?"

He walked with her to the door, to Gilbert's surprise, crossed the threshold and went into the little office. Somehow or other—such things are always mysteries, certainly they are accidents—the door seemed to close of its own accord.

"Wait for me a little while," he said, taking both her hands in his. "It's going to be such a glorious world for us. I never knew what happiness meant till now. To be wherever you were has always made life sweet, but now everything takes on a new meaning transmuted by the glory of being loved by you."

She loosed one hand from his grasp and put it over his mouth. "Naughty boy, you must go back to work. You're playing truant here. I mustn't listen to you. When I listen to you, you make me forget everything but that I love you. And now I want to be alone and think."

"I Like Belmont Immensely Now."

To leave her for an instant was like having his life's sun in eclipse. At last she freed herself from his arms and bade him go. He had gone as far as the door, his hand upon the knob, when she quickly crossed the small space between them, threw her arms around his neck and whispered:

"Remember, dear, in whatever you do, I'm with you. May my love and my confidence support you ever."

It seemed to him like a benediction. Again were his arms around her, again their lips pledged their hearts' lasting love. Gently he released himself from her embrace, and with a parting smile was gone.

Wright stepped into the library, his eyes upon Gloria until the closed door shut her from his sight. He turned to find himself face to face with David Kerr.

While Wright had been talking to Gloria, Kerr and Kendall had joined the attorney in the library. As soon as the editor saw with whom he had to deal, he recognized how hard pressed were his friends the enemy, since no go-between was employed. He was being asked to treat with the boss of Belmont himself.

"You know Mr. Kendall and Mr. Kerr," Gilbert said, without resorting to his social manner, as was his custom. This he knew to be a case of diamond cut diamond, and there was no occasion for any seeming show of friendliness.

"I had the pleasure of meeting them at your house."

It was easy to see from the direct opening of the conversation that there was to be little beating around the bush. Gilbert took a chair at the head of the long library table. Wright sat to his left, where he could see the door of the room in which Gloria waited for him. Opposite to him were Kerr and Kendall.

"It's been a hot campaign," were the boss' first words, "but we can afford to let bygones be bygones."

Wright was not to be led into any admission which might be used against him later, and therefore would not assent to this.

"What I can afford has nothing to do with it. The one question is: Can Belmont afford to give itself up to this terminal trust that leaves no stone unturned in its effort to steal the streets and parks of the town? That is only the first step. Where do you propose it shall end?"

"That's where you misrepresent our side, Mr. Wright," said Kendall. "The undertaking you speak of is perfectly legitimate, for the direct benefit of Belmont. I challenge you to prove that what you have accused us of being about to do is really the intention of this company. Nothing, sir, is farther from it."

"That's all been gone over," Wright said, turning to the lawyer at the head of the table. "There's nothing new to be said along that line. Was it for this you sent for me, Judge Gilbert?"

"No. I asked you to come over here to consider an offer for your paper. Is the News for sale?"

"That depends. For sale when applied to a newspaper may sometimes have an ugly meaning."

"Of course," Gilbert was quick to add, "I mean as a newspaper property."

"I'm a poor man, Judge Gilbert," Wright began slowly. "I couldn't refuse to consider an offer—"

He got no further, for Kendall exclaimed:

"That's what I thought." "Wait a minute," Wright asked him, lifting his hand in warning that he had not finished. "You interrupted me before I was through. What I say is this: I couldn't refuse to consider an offer from a proper quarter."

"What does the source matter to you?" Kendall inquired. "You're human. You want money as bad as any of us."

Before replying, Wright's gaze rested for an instant on the door behind which his heart's happiness waited. Her words came to him, strengthening him to meet the tempter: "Remember, dear, in whatever you do, I'm with you. May my love and my confidence support you ever."

"I may want money—need it—worse than any of you," he confessed. "But it must come only one way—honestly."

"Nothin' dishonest 'bout sellin' a paper, is there?" growled Kerr.

"I can't tell in this case until I hear what Judge Gilbert's offer is."

"It's simply this: I have some cit-ents who wish to purchase your paper.

"Mr. Kerr and Mr. Kendall, I suppose."

"Does it make any difference to you?"

"It may to Belmont."

"What's Belmont got to do with it?" asked Kerr.

"A newspaper can't change hands like a stock of groceries," Wright retorted impatiently.

"You know I want to be open and above board with you, Mr. Wright," soothed Gilbert. "So I'll tell you that Mr. Kendall and Mr. Kerr are interested in this offer. I know the paper's mortgaged. What'll you sell for, the purchasers to assume the mortgage and all other debts, and possession to be given this afternoon?"

Wright merely looked at him and shook his head. What he thought he almost hated to say. It hurt him to think that they could believe he would even listen to such a proposition.

"Then," continued Gilbert, "another basis on which to deal would give you nominal control until after election, but my clients would not expect the paper to be so vehement in its denunciations in the next few days."

"Judge Gilbert," the editor replied quietly, but with great earnestness, "that's an offer I don't thank you for. These men haven't enough money to buy my paper."

"You bought the paper," snarled Kerr in an ugly manner.

"Yes," came the answer right back at him, "but you want to buy my self-respect."

The two men glared at each other, but the boss did not deny the assertion. The elder man was beginning to rage inwardly. So accustomed had he become to the exercise of autocratic power in Belmont that he could not reconcile himself to being thwarted, especially when success was so vital to him.

"There's a good profit in it for you," was the conciliatory remark of Judge Gilbert.

Card of Thanks.

To the many neighbors and friends who so kindly and tenderly ministered unto our dearly beloved wife and mother during her illness and death; and to the kind friends who sent tributes of beautiful flowers, of which our dear, sweet wife and mother was so fond in life, we desire to express the deep thankfulness of grateful hearts, and beg to assure you, one and all, that we will not forget or be unmindful of these acts of tender kindness. You will always have a warm place in our hearts. The burden of grief would be lightened, were it possible for kind words and deeds to assuage the anguish of this our dark hour of bereavement.
